Madhurima is a development professional with over three years of experience in research, monitoring and evaluation, and impact-oriented programme support. Her work spans donor-funded initiatives across health, livelihoods, and social inclusion, with a focus on generating evidence to inform policy and programme design.

Prior to this, she worked as a Research Analyst at AMS Consulting, supporting monitoring and evaluation of large-scale development programmes. She has experience in designing quantitative and qualitative research tools, managing field operations, ensuring data quality, and translating findings into actionable insights for programme improvement. Her experience is further complemented by engagements with SRI, a parliamentary internship with the Parliament of India (2018), and an association with ODI (2024).

Madhurima holds a Master of Science in Development Studies from SOAS, University of London, and a Master of Arts in Development and Labour Studies from Jawaharlal Nehru University. She completed her Bachelor of Arts (Honours) in Economics from Shri Ram College of Commerce.
